ENORMOUS GRANITE SHAFT

Obelisk for Sault Ste Marie Canal Ready at Bradford Quarry.

Bradford, Mass., May 8.—The obelisk which will be set up to commemorate the opening of the Sault Ste Marie canal has been completed at one of the Bradford quarries and is now ready for shipment. The shaft is of hammered Stony Creek red granite, is 45 feet long, five feet five inches square at the foot, tapering to a dimension of one foot square, and then finished to a point, and weighs about 60 tons. When set up it will be upon granite bases of considerable depth. The shipment of the obelisk has brought about a transportation problem which a number of railroad traffic men are figuring out. The only solution seems to be the use of a car belonging to the Pennsylvania railroad which is used to transport heavy ordnance. The longest car available is 36 feet, and it will be necessary to mount a bed on swivels to carry the shaft as the train rounds a curve. When the question of routing the shaft was figured out several traffic men had to give up the task, as they were not certain that all the bridges on their respective lines were capable of sustaining the enormous weight of the car and its load. About 12 years ago the battle shaft at West Point was cut at a Bradford quarry, and this had to be shipped in a roundabout way. It was 41 feet long, and at that time was the largest shaft ever cut and transported by rail in the country.

AUTO ENGINE MAKES MAN BITE HIS TONGUE IN TWO.

Victim Races to Hospital, Where Severed Organ is Sewed Up.

Chicago, May 8.—Bion J. Arnold, who is the head of the Traction Board of Supervising Engineers, was repairing his brothers' auto here when his jaws were forced together by the engine "kicking back," and his tongue was caught between his teeth and cut clear off. Mr. Arnold closed his mouth firmly, though the blood from the severed tongue dripped his clothes, sprang into the machine and drove rapidly and accurately to the Mercy hospital, where he arrived twenty minutes after the accident happened. The surgeons stitched the tongue together and assured Mr. Arnold that it would knit and that in time he would be able to speak again.

Schuetzenfest in Charleston—Hears the Maennergesang Verein of Vienna—Incidentally Attends to the Usual Routine Duties.

Washington, May 8.—Monday afternoon was of the busiest that President Roosevelt ever experienced. What with seeing many callers and attending to his usual daily official duties, he managed to open a fair, fire a few long-distance shots that signaled the beginning of a schuetzenfest and listened to a concert in East Room of the White House. At two o'clock he pressed an electric key which opened the Actors' Fund Fair in New York. Half an hour later he seated himself at the table on which the instrument had been set and did some long-distance rifle shooting. The telegraph key at the White House sent a current through 515 miles of wires, which ended at Charleston, S. C., where the National Schuetzenbund began its annual meeting today. At the Charleston end of the wire was a rifle clamped into a rigid position. The rifle was pointed directly at a target, and when the President pressed the key the current communicated with a trigger which fired the rifle. Beside the President on the table was a telephone instrument and Mr. Roosevelt talked with the president of the Schuetzenbund at Charleston, and heard the report of the rifle.

Immediately after he had finished making the record long-distance rifle score Mr. Roosevelt went to the East room, where the Wiener Maennergesang Verein, a famous singing society of Vienna, sang several songs. This organization is composed of men of high social standing. Several of them are very wealthy, and the society is sometimes called "The Millionaires' Chorus." More than four hundred people were in the party that crowded into the East Room. These included 183 of the Vienna singers, members of the families and a delegation from the Washington Sangerbund. Four numbers were sung: Franz Schubert's "The Twenty-Third Psalm," Richard Heuberger's "The Tyrolean Night Watch," Edward Kramer's "Old Dutch" and "In Winter."

STAKE OF $80,000 HANGS ON MAN'S LIFE.

Syndicate Buys an Interest in $1,500,000 Estate; Loses if Man Should Die.

Santa Monica, Cal., May 8.—A stake of $80,000 play against a fortune of nearly $1,500,000, with a human life as the final determining factor, are features of an unusual transaction entered into between Henry C. Keating and a syndicate of four local men.

In about three years, if he lives, Keating will fall heir to $1,500,000 of an estate to be settled at that time when the younger heirs will become of age. The syndicate gave Keating $80,000 for his interest in the estate, taking the risk of losing the $80,000 if Keating dies before the estate is settled, as the other heirs then come into the whole estate of $3,000,000.

Should Keating survive the settlement of the estate, the syndicate will make $1,420,000, less the interest on the $80,000 and various legal fees.

INEXPENSIVE FEEDING.

Justfood Costs Less Than a Cent a Meal for a Little Baby.

The most economical of all baby foods is Justfood, no matter what size is purchased, but when the large size costing $1.50 is bought the food when prepared costs less than a cent a meal for a little baby.

A three months' old baby can be fed Justfood for 75 cents a day, including the cost of the milk, while other foods cost from 90 to 120 a day.

Although Justfood may cost a trifle more than condensed milk or ordinary cow's milk alone, yet this is not a point worthy of consideration when one realizes the fact that babies living upon Justfood are rarely sick and grow to be strong, sturdy children with full promise of health and vigor. Our best physicians have prescribed it for years.

Justfood is inexpensive, and no mother could afford when weaning a little one, to use anything else.

Justfood is sold by most druggists at 50c, $1.00 and $1.50. Sample package free by mail. Justfood Co., 60 North Franklin street, Syracuse, N. Y.

TOTS TO GIVE SKIN TO TINY SUFFERER

Hospital Inmates Won By the Hymns Bravely Sung By Girl Who Was Burned.

New York, May 8.—From 30 of her fellow-sufferers in the Kings County hospital 7-year-old Lucia Powell will receive sufficient skin to cover the terrible lacerations she received. These little children are anxious for the sacrifice because of the cheer which has pervaded the hospital since the arrival of the little Powell girl.

Ambulance Surgeon Gilbert was summoned to attend the child at her home. She had been pushed into a bonfire by her little brother and the flesh had been burned from her back. He hurried the little one to the hospital. All the way she sang hymns.

Her frail body is a mass of burns and she suffers intense agony at times, but she has not given up her singing of Sunday school hymns. News of her courage soon spread among the other little ones in the hospital, and when it became known that skin grafting was necessary to save Lucia's life all were willing to help her.

TRADE AGREEMENTS.

Arbitration as an Aid to Industrial Peace—A Substitute for Strikes.

Arbitration as a substitute for labor strikes is constantly growing in favor with all classes of citizens, writes Joseph R. Buchanan in the New York Journal. While trade unions do not and probably never will sanction what is known as "compulsory arbitration," that is, trials of grievances by law outside courts—they prefer, mediation and amicable adjustment to warfare.

And the answer, "Nothing to arbitrate," is not so often made as it was a few years ago to labor's requests for conferences with employers upon questions of disagreement.

Thus, while labor has not by any means abandoned the strike under all circumstances nor employers the lock-out, there is an ever increasing tendency toward the adoption of trade agreements, including provisions for the arbitration of disputed matters. Generally speaking, however, it remains for employers and the unions to devise and work out practical and satisfactory methods of arbitration.

A noticeable instance of the working out of arbitration is presented in the compact between the American Newspaper Publishers' association, which includes about 250 of the leading newspapers of the country, and the International Typographical union with its more than 45,000 members. The initial agreement between these two great associations covered only one year and provided for the arbitration of disputes that might arise in the making of a contract and under the contract after it was made. The arbitration board under both these agreements consisted of one representative of the publisher and one representative of the union, these two to select a third member or chairman. This method was found to be unsatisfactory, as it was necessary to go outside of the confines of the printing industry to secure a chairman, and in nearly all instances the man selected was totally unfamiliar with the working conditions in a newspaper office.

The American Newspaper Publishers' association met in convention in New York in February, and a new agreement, which had previously been formulated by the executive council of the International Typographical union and the special standing committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, was indorsed at that convention. This agreement embraces a radically different method of arbitration from what has heretofore been a part of any agreement in this country—that is, an agreement of national scope. The new arbitration agreement provides for an arbitration board composed of three members representing the union and three members representing the publishers, all six experts in the newspaper field, and this board is to settle disputes without the aid of a chairman or umpire. Before the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' association last February James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union, in referring to the new agreement, said:

"The third agreement, which comes before your convention for action, will be effective on May 1 if you approve it and in its working method embraces a most radical departure from the arbitration idea that has heretofore obtained. In place of a board composed of three members, with a chairman usually selected without regard for his knowledge of the newspaper publishing business and working conditions in a composing room and whose decision was usually a hit and miss affair, we now propose a board composed of three members who have most intimate knowledge of newspaper production and three members who are presumed to have knowledge of conditions that obtain in composing rooms.

"I am aware that this is to a large extent an experiment in industrial affairs on the North American continent, although it has obtained for years in England. I am confident, however, that in all cases coming before the tribunal constituted as outlined eventual decision will be rendered, although in some cases there may be delay. That delay, however, will not be near as great as the delay that now accompanies almost every case arising under the present agreement.

"There is one feature in the agreement that is especially meritorious, and that is the clause that allows the representatives of both parties to make necessary changes at any time that there appears to be necessity for the changes. For nearly six years the members of your association, with one or two exceptions, have enjoyed industrial peace. This is also true of the members of the International Typographical union employed by you. We have both profited by the agreement. We may not have secured all that we thought we were entitled to, but at least we have maintained friendly relations, and in the aggregate we have produced your newspapers without interruption, and our members have had the opportunity to labor unimpeded by the strike."

"The International Typographical union is the oldest international union in this country and is counted among the progressive and at the same time conservative organizations. It is not surprising, therefore, that it negotiated an arbitration agreement which marks an epoch in the attempt to secure industrial peace.

10 INNINGS FOR THE GAME

Philadelphia Nationals Defeated Tenney's Men

YOUNG AN EASY PROBLEM

Fast Work By His Team-Mates Kept Down the Scoring—Corrigan Was a Puzzle to the Home Team Throughout.

Boston, May 8.—Clever fielding by Tenney's men was all that saved young "Cy" Young from a disastrous defeat at the hands of Philadelphia yesterday. As it was the defeat was only 3 to 1 and then it took the winners ten innings to do the trick. Young was hit hard all through the game, but was fortunate in backing, the home team making no less than four double plays. On the other hand Corridon was an enigma, allowing but one clean hit, that by Burke, a utility man, and a scratch by Tenney.

The visitors scored in the first inning on two singles, an out and a third single, and they didn't get around the bases again until the tenth when Thomas and Gleason singled and Magee sent them in with a triple.

The single run which Boston made and which caused the extra inning came in the fourth. Chicago fumbled Bates' grounder and then Tenney bunted safely. Beaumont sent them along with a sacrifice and when Howard fled out to Magee closed the fence Bates scored. Bridwell ended the inning by fanning. The score by innings:

Phila. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10
Boston 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0

Summary—Hits, off Young 11, off Corridon 2; three base hit, Magee; two base hit, Jacklitich; sacrifice, Beaumont; struck out, by Young 2, by Corridon 5; base on balls, off Young 2, off Corridon; hit by pitcher, by Young, by Corridon; double plays, Howard, Bridwell and Tenney, Bates and Tenney, Young, Howard and Tenney, Bridwell, Howard and Tenney, Titus and Bransfield.

For a Universal Label.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, has renewed his agitation in favor of the universal label. His attitude has the indorsement of the entire organization, as shown by the proceedings of the last convention. A universal label is the first and most important step in the direction of industrial unionism.

The Balance of a Pick.

Carpenters, blacksmiths, axmen and others accustomed to the constant use of tools with long handles know that if the tools are not so balanced that the force of a blow falls upon the center of percussion an uncomfortable jar is felt. An ax or a hammer particularly well balanced is regarded as a peculiar treasure.

Don't You Like This Town?

You live here. Your business interests are here. Your home is here.

You are reading a Mail Order Catalogue. That indicates that you are not spending your money in this town. You are spending it with strangers in a big city. That city has no use for this town except to get your money.

This town has use for your money. If spent here, your money will help to build up the town. It will help to build up your own business.

In the long run more of your money will come back to you if you spend it at home than if you send it to Chicago or some other large city. You spend a dollar with Smith, up the street. Smith spends it with Brown, around the corner. Brown is just as likely to spend it with you as with anybody else. Did you ever think of that?

All of us have to spend money. There is an art in spending it where it will do the most good. If spent so that it will circulate around this town and community, it will help this town and community. You belong to this town and community. Therefore it will help you. Isn't that good logic?

Suppose you think it over next time you pick up the Mail Order Catalogue.
